(Newswire.net -- September 24, 2013) Tulsa, Oklahoma --

Tulsa Divorce Attorney, a brand new family law information resource, is now ready to use.

The TulsaDivorceAttorney.com website helps out site visitors from the Tulsa, Oklahoma neighborhoods learn about the legal steps in the divorce process and decide on a respectable divorce law firm.

"Divorce is a rather complex process to go through," reported website coordinator Rebecca Bush. "It often takes a long time and there are many different steps that have to be taken. We hope this new site can help out a few people a little bit as they go through this process."

"The divorce process often brings out the worst in people," Bush continued, "It is not intentional, but the process often sets up the married couple to see it as a contest of one versus the other, instead of a process that the two of them should try to get through together."

Bush reported that the issues of kids and money are the two biggest areas of contention. "Whenever kids are involved, things get complicated." Bush said, "The courts want what is best for the children, but that is often a tough call for a third party to make."

"And whenever money and property are involved, couples need to decide on some way of splitting that money and property up, but someone usually feels that the other party is getting more than their fair share," continued Bush, "And that is when emotions can really escalate."

"It's always better when a married couple mutually understands that it would be better to dissolve a marriage and they try to do it as peacefully and as efficiently as possible," Bush concluded, "But, unfortunately, that isn't often the case."
